

MR. MCINTOSH: Hi, there. I'm not afraid to talk to you. My name is Frankie McIntosh. I live in Delta County. I've lived there since 1978. I'm here to fight. One, I don't really know what this is about. I know it has a thing called coal. I do know a lot of coal miners. I know a lot of Veterans. I fought for this in Delta County at the Delta County high school. I'm going to let you all know I'm not opposed or against. I want to keep coal miners employed. I understand the environmental aspects. As you can see, I have no paperwork here in front of me. I understand the environment risk end. However, China and a lot of other countries are contributing to air pollution. Okay. All right. We all -- everybody in this room and 1,000 -- 100,000 people on this earth all have a responsibility to breathing well. Okay. I come from a Veteran's family. My mom is a WAC. And I bet you $20, back then there was a hell of a lot of coal being burnt. She did the Iditarod because the Native Alaskans were dying. I come from a strong military background. I come from a strong coal background. I come from a very environmentalist friendly place. Okay. Bottom line. Everyone that I look at at this panel and every person I see here or left here today, has a responsibility to a planet called earth. None of us are going to get it perfect. Okay. That's the bottom line. Right? I don't have, I don't have a Ph.D. I don't have a college degree. I have Mother Earth behind me. And I have a thing called common sense. We need to keep coal miners in the North Fork Valley hired. We have the best coal on this planet for clean. And the trains aren't running very frequently anymore. Thank you very much. Okay. I'm not going to talk about politics because that would take far too long. You've given me three minutes. I begged them I would do my best. Because I don't know if I'm the last speaker. I -- this, this lady is after me. I'll take three minutes, 11 seconds. Are you ready? Because bottom line. We got people going out of work. I don't care who the President is. I don't care if he's for coal or against coal. I don't care if it's a man or a woman. Everyone out here is looking for a job. I can't even get two contractors to get their stuff together on my project on my farm, which is located in Delta County. Will I hire anyone else to do that? You bet your sweet dippy I will. I'm trying to be politically correct as best that I can. I think you've figured it out, I'm not. I drive a truck for a living. I've tended bar. And I've got a mom that was a liberal. Thank God for my parents because they fought for all of your freedoms. Please keep our coal miners employed and think twice. Because I don't even know what this moratorium is about. But, I fought for it at the Delta High School. Thank you very much for your time.
