Hi Patricia,

for some reason the site <https://go.usa.gov/xMtJQ>
isn't working for me, so I'll send this snail mail!

I am writing out of concern for the Greater Sage Grouse. They are magnificent and beleaguered birds whose populations continue to plummet throughout their range. Many reasons cause this, but chiefly man-made disturbances, such as oil + gas drilling + roads, livestock grazing, roads + trails, utility lines + encroaching trees, as well as climate-change-caused drought. Please increase protections for these birds! I am a birdwatcher and would love to see them while out walking! The Sagebrush ecosystem supports up to 350 other species. Greater Sage Grouse need more protection, not less! Thank you
