I am writing to demand the BLM does not take any steps towards opening up the federal lands of the National Arctic Wildlife Refuge to oil exploration or drilling. The intact ecosystem is of much greater value to the American people than any monetary profit from oil extraction. Those profits only go to a few tiny population of folks working for and running a few extraction-related companies. The consequences of drilling on the fragile ecosystem and its inhabitants, many of them endangered- not to mention the great contribution this endeavor would have towards worsening climate change, are unconscionable. Do not even entertain the question of whether we should do it!
