I am so opposed to oil and gas leasing on the coastal plain of Alaska.

I work in Denali National Park and when Charles Sheldon first proposed a refuge here in 1906 there were many objections. This year nearly ¾ of a million people will come to see that far and distant land that Charles Sheldon thought important to preserve.

Millions of people have come here to enjoy one of the few last pockets of wild places we have in this nation, on this planet. The value of wilderness to be enjoyed for now and future generations – is priceless.

BLM needs to fully analyze the impacts of development in this area – with the future in mind, and not just some temporary money making scene.
