A pristine wildlife preserve next to pristine coastal waters serves as a reminder of how much of North America looked before being settled by white explorers. Most of our coastal areas have been irreparably changed by settlement and 'progress.'

Please keep this rare stretch of land and coastal water pure and untrammelled by the human industrial process, especially oil exploration. The irreparable damage caused by an accidental spill, plus the hard-to-erase footprint of oil exploration and removal, will change the land and water for hundreds of years in exchange for the almighty dollar. Let nature continue to thrive undisturbed in this magical place.

Sincerely, Sandra Hartnett
