Drilling in ANWR will NOT lead to lower oil and gas prices. What's mainly driving high oil prices today is an increased demand that we cannot keep up with. Responsible use is the answer.

Drilling will not reduce fuel prices, and will not make us more energy independent. The only way to achieve these goals is to reduce our dependence on oil.

The northern coastal plain of ANWR – the proposed area for drilling – is a vital part of the ANWR ecosystem and worth protecting for future generations.

There are other areas to be considered for drilling that would offer more for less money and destruction to environment. Let's look at all the options.
