Dear America, dear neighbours in Alaska,

I don't live in America, I live in Yukon, next door to Alaska.

The Porcupine Caribou herd spend much of their time in Yukon, and much of their time in Alaska, their travels vary widely but there is one place that they return to each and every year: The Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

Canada and America signed an agreement to look after the Porcupine herd- the Porcupine Caribou Agreement.

Canada has lived up to the agreement, and up until now, so has America.

Please, America, keep your word.

Regards,

Sebastian Jones
