I am opposed to oil or gas drilling at the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

These are my comments that I ask to be included before the June 19 deadline.

There is no need for oil and gas drilling at ANWR at this time - there is already a massive surplus of existing oil and gas leases and permits. There is no evidence that shows drilling at ANWR will be more successful than those existing leases or permits.

Development of the unique land of ANWR would have a negative impact on the environment, not just in additional carbon released by fossil fuels or oil spills, but to critical or endangered species like polar bears and caribou.

The possible benefit of drilling is greatly outweighed by the certain negatives of environmental damage.

Please do not allow drilling at ANWR.

Sincerely,

Leif Johnson
