I am absolutely opposed to any industrial activity, including drilling, in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, especially the calving grounds of the Porcupine caribou herd.

This is an issue that deeply affects both Canadians and Americans, particularly northerners. As a longtime resident of the Northwest Territories, I understand how important caribou are as a food source, and as a critical part of the culture and identity of northern indigenous peoples.

The Porcupine caribou herd are one of the last healthy barren-ground herds in North America. Opening the ANWF to drilling could destroy this herd, and significantly impact the wellbeing of the Gwich'in people who rely on them.

Don't do it! Under any conditions! Think about the world your children and grandchildren will inherit.

Kind regards,
Shauna Morgan
