Folks at BLM,

As US citizens and taxpayers for over 60 years, we echo former Secretary of the Interior Sally Jewell's article in the Seattle Times (June 3, 2018) that urges the administration to "reconsider their ill-conceived, dangerous and costly rush to sell out one of the last truly wild places on earth."

We also echo the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's 2015 conclusion from their multiyear review that included more than a million public comments, including from scientists, biologists and Alaska Native communities that drilling will cause irrevocable damage to the refuge.

NO DRILLING FOR OIL AND GAS IN THE ARCTIC NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE.

Sincerely,

Marlene and Leo Muller
Seattle, WA
