Please do not proceed with oil and gas exploration in the Arctic Refuge. This land is the calving grounds for the Porcupine Caribou herd. This herd is fundamental to the well being and livelihood of the Gwitch'in peoples whose settlements are placed along the extensive migration route of the Porcupine Caribou herd. These people depend on the caribou herd. If the calving grounds are disrupted by activity such as sound and people, this greatly impacts their survival and consequently the survival of the Gwitch'in people and their culture.

Kind regards,

Rosemary Plaskett
