The pristine beauty of the Artic National Wildlife Refuge far outways any privatized profit to be gained from oil and gas drilling and is a backhanded slap to the American public! Such a pristine area will only gain value in an increasingly populated world and can serve as a strong economic asset for future conservational uses. Land as pristine as the ANWR will only grow more rare as time goes on and one day become priceless! Great uncertainty still is present with the amount of oil that will actually be recovered, and makes oil and gas projects all the more reckless when compared to the finality of destroying such a unique, untouched landscape. Selling off America's public lands puts out the message that private interest holds greater importance than the will of the majority of the American people, which is flat out against America's values. Once the land is destroyed, there's no going back. Remember that your children will be the ones who have to clean up the mess and mourn the loss of the American Dream of enjoying the wildlands themselves. I urge you to not allow the destruction of America's land and am strongly against any oil and gas exploration in this area.
