Keep drilling out of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. It is a national treasure that belongs to all citizens, not to private companies that want to exploit our parks for their profit. The oil and gas industry is irresponsible when it comes to environmental damage, and the fact is that we already have more than enough proven reserves to handle our energy needs for the foreseeable future. Meanwhile, the goal of all government agencies that play a role in energy decisions must be to make the transition to a carbon free future as expeditiously as possible.

Sincerely,

Philip Rose
