I am opposed to any drilling for oil or other fossil fuels in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR). There is no economic need or benefit now or in the future to American well-being or safety to drill in this area, and the area needs to be preserved undisturbed as a wild refuge. There are always risks to drilling, no matter how many safety measures are put in place, and drilling poses a completely needless risk of damage to the region and beyond. Again, drilling in the ANWR is unwise, unsafe and unnecessary. Don't allow it.
