To whom it may Concern,

There should not be any oil drilling in the 1002 region of the Northern Arctic Wildlife Refuge. This is far too sensitive of a region to mess up with more development. Enough is enough. The country and the state of Alaska should instead be developing more sustainable energy resource alternatives like we have done on Kodiak Island with hydro and wind power. Extracting more oil from the Alaska Arctic is not even necessary given the glut of oil in the world. Why ruin such a beautiful area when it is just about greed and politics?

Thank you,
Sincerely,
