To the fine people making big decisions about our natural world vs. oil and gas:

Please do not destroy the Arctic Refuge Coastal Plain by opening it up to drilling. We don't need the oil. The space around this area has leases open for drilling and they aren't being snatched up by the oil companies.

This area is so special and beautiful and belongs to all Americans. It has been set aside as a gem of the natural world and we need to honor that truth.

Drilling will exacerbate global warming and is unnecessary. We have options for energy that don't destroy pristine wilderness. Please let's move toward these cleaner more sustainable ways of generating energy.

It is unconscionable to risk destruction of such pristine, rare open space, so full of plants, animals and the majesty of our natural world.

Thank you for reading this,
Stacey Tompkins
