Ryan Zinke,

I have been to the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and discovered that it is an amazing place with an abundance of wildlife. It would be extremely short-sighted to allow drilling in this area. Please reject the proposal to open the coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to drilling.

Instead of extracting more fossil fuels which would only accelerate global warming, we should be putting our efforts into renewable energy such as wind and solar. Burning of the oil and gas produced from the coastal plain threatens to accelerate global warming, threatening wildlife and people across the globe.

Locally, drilling would have devastating and permanent impacts on the refuge's wildlife, as well as the Gwich'in people who rely upon its caribou herd.

Please reject this short-sighted proposal.
