It makes no sense to "destroy the world in order to live in it," which is the way of the "corporate mind," as author Wendell Berry puts it. To survive and prosper, our U.S. government must show respect for the non-corporate mind reflected in non-commodified, non-industrialized lands. The coastal plain is the only 5% of the North Slope that does so. Keep the Refuge a refuge for self-renewal so that life may flourish in it.
