Good afternoon,

I have been to Alaska and I live in Louisiana and I have walked on the sands of Corpus Christi where you can see the oil.

These last to items explain why I am opposed to drilling in Alaska. Where there is oil there will be spills and the arctic is not designed to handle it. There are endanger species there and with permafrost melting dud to climate change that wind be a dangerous environmental disaster.

Secondary to these fears of a spill we need to get away from fossil based fuels and work toward renewable ones. We do not need this oil.

I request you stand up to those trying to drill everywhere, in parks, on seashores, and in oceans. This is the only earth we have and we should not put it at risk.
