Dear BLM Decision-Makers:

Drilling in the ANWR is a very poor idea. The US — and the world — are awash in a glut of fossil fuels, and there is no justification for opening up the great treasure of our protected wildland system at the expense of the wildlife and other natural values there. This surely looks like anti-environmental politics in its worst and most blatant form. Please don't aid and abet degradation of one of the most pristine natural strongholds left on the planet. This is wrong for the public, including consumers, wrong for the American vision of wild frontiers, and wrong for future generations.

Sincerely,
Douglas Chadwick
