The Arctic Wildlife Refuge is a pristine and wonderous place and home to many creatures. I do not believe drilling and the infrastructure this would entail would have no impact on this area as the industry claims. The inevitable spills would, according to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, cause irrevocable damage in this sensitive ecology. We do not need these oil reserves at this time as we have plenty in the lower 48. Please consider the future and do not rush to destroy what is one of the last truly wild places on earth.

Sincerely,

Paula Dillinger
