Dear BLM administrators,

I am writing to ask why there is a critical need to drill for fossil fuels in the Arctic Refuge. It seems to me more energy should be put into renewal resources such as off shore wind farms. We all know that as electric vehicles become popular and renewal energy is the wave of the future. Some nations and US states are making concerted efforts to reduce the use of gas and oil. Thus the need for these in ground resources will diminish at the same time the cost of extraction will increase.

I believe that to drill and dip up Mother Earth, in one of the most precious natural landscapes on earth is short sighted and all about greed.

Please ask yourselves what kind of a world do you personally want your grandchildren to inherit.

Thank you,
