To Whom It May Concern,

I am a regular, American voter. I don't live near the Arctic Refuge but I still value it and the role it plays in a delicate ecosystem! I vehemently oppose oil and gas drilling in the Arctic Refuge! Best case scenario: there are no leaks, no pollution byproducts, however, the plants and animals in the area lose valuable habitat and the balance is significantly upset. However, history has shown that even the best plans for drilling will spill and produce waste. We cannot afford to destroy any more of what little nature we have left!

As an American voter, I am told repeatedly that the number one issue is jobs and that gas prices are key. NOT TO ME. I am far more concerned that we are making irreversible decisions about the environment and thinking that there will be no consequence. This is ridiculous. Ask the American people if they agree with drilling in the Arctic Refuge and the answer will overwhelmingly be: NO!

Sincerely,
Jamie Dybdahl
