Dear Bureau of Land Management,

We strongly oppose efforts to explore and drill for oil and gas in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. It is the responsibility of the Department of the Interior to examine the science and evaluate the impact at every stage of energy development in every area of our country, including the Arctic. A thorough scientific analysis is required by law and is necessary to meet the Department's obligations to responsibly steward all areas of the National Wildlife Refuge System, including the Arctic.

The Department must carefully consider every issue. If done according to the law, it is likely that the analysis will show that oil and gas drilling does not belong in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

Please do what is right for the future of our country.

Sincerely,

Diane Eckstein

Phoenix, AZ 85016
