Hello,

I live in the great state of AK. So this proposal really hits home you could say. I understand as an Alaskan the pros and the cons, But I feel like I need to add my voice. In a world filled with so much traffic and chaos places like the Arctic refuge become even more unique and special. One of the truly beautiful things about the refuge it is that it wild and untouched. Alaska is beautiful and I have hiked along some beautiful trails and spent a lot of time in its wilderness. It is tragic and spoiling to come across old oil barrels, tires, cars, gold mine equipment etc. I know there are regulations that have to be followed but I have witnessed first hand that those regulations are well intended but don't always get met. It would be tragic if the arctic refuge were to become a place of prospect. This land needs to be protected like a endangered animal would be. Please please please keep the drills out!

Thank you for your time and hearing my voice.
