Dear Nicole

As a travel agent, I send many travelers to the high Arctic to view wildlife and the natural scenery.

My clients DO NOT want to see any exploration for oil or gas or any fossil fuels.

They don't want to see rigs or drilling or digging or mining or heavy equipment or pipelines.

They especially don't want to see any oil spills or issues related to the inevitable accidents that will occur

This is entirely out of place such a fragile ecosystem.

There are so many reasons NOT TO DRILL in the Arctic

*we need to be focusing on renewable energy

*we do not need to disturb wildlife

*we do not need to upset the way of life for native Americans living there *we need to address climate change and drilling for oil is the last thing we need to do.

Please do every thing to protect the Arctic ecosystem and its wildlife and people from ANY ENERGY EXPLORATION

Thank you

Rebecca
