The Arctic is sacred; please, please don't open it to coastal drilling and roads. The Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is a place that we should practice restraint and keep undeveloped. In a world of growing technology and industrialism, the Arctic gives us hope that wildness remains; it's the place my mind goes to when I think of places I want my daughter to experience just as it has been for millennia. Please, keep this sacred ground wild and untrammelled and free from irreversible human impact. Developing this amazing landscape would be devastating, to both wildlife and humans.
