Hello!

One of the last areas home an abundance wildlife must to preserved. Oil drilling will harm the environment, massive infrastructure, pollution, the testing for the site alone will creating increasingly difficult circumstances for the animals. Specifically, drilling in the 1002 Area would be highly damaging to the habits built by polar bears. Many polar bears are already affected by melting ice, forced to bulid more dens along the coast, which may no longer be possible with impending oil drilling.

I want to keep the Artic National Wildlife Refuge protected from oil drilling, preserving the habit for the current animals, but also future generations of wildlife and human beings to enjoy.

Thank you,
Sofia Deva Long
