Please consider alternative A. You put it out there, then said it's not an option. There should be no alternative B, C, D1 or D2. It's only 8%, they say. That's kinda like saying "We had to take the brake pads on your car, but don't worry, it's only 8%." It's not fair, you're kind of avoiding the questions being thrown at you.

By the time the land is leased, and by the time the land is developed, have you even thought about the scenario that the world has moved on from oil, how much money would actually be made?

this is just one of many technical problems with the plan. I don't know why I'm writing this, you probably won't listen to me. I'm only eleven, after all. But it is nice to try.
