Comments:

No part of the ANWR should be made available to oil and gas interests. Refuges are meant for conservation and preservation, protecting life forms within the borders. The Gwich'in ~~suburbs~~ are humans impacted by the proposed leasing program. Exploration activities hurt vulnerable and already threatened wildlife. Introducing oil and gas exploration harms the delicate balance of nature — animals can't adapt to drilling and seismic activity quickly enough to survive.

It's time for oil and gas to move out and renewables to move in. Keep the refuge protected for the good of the Gwich'in and native wildlife. They won't recover if oil and gas move in.
