Comments:

The Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is just that, a refuge. It is a refuge for thousands of porcupine caribou, migratory birds, polar bear and native Alaskans who have made this region home. Opening up this sacred land to oil and gas development means destroying this place of refuge forever. It is not a temporary decision. The impacts of industrial activities associated with drilling and exploration will last far beyond when the last drills are removed. Precious, untouched land in the refuge will be destroyed and for what? The greed of the oil and gas industry. When our children and their children look back on our actions I want them to be proud of the decisions we make. Climate change is one of the biggest threats to our generation and future generations and more development in the coastal plain will speed up the impacts exponentially.
